

St. James's Club & Villas Antigua

Hotel Rating: 4 Star

Overview

Picture-perfect bay

Fronting jewel-like Mamora Bay and featuring two beaches, this Antigua resort occupies a 40-hectare (100-acre) peninsula on the southeast coast; Nelson's Dockyard National Park is 5 km (3 miles) away.

Furnished patios

178 guestrooms, suites, and villas are flanked by flowering gardens and offer sea-view balconies or patios.

Sun and surf

St. James's Club features four freshwater pools and six tennis courts, sailing and windsurfing, a children's club, all-inclusive plan and nightly entertainment.

What to Expect: Popular with families during summer and holidays and with couples during winter, this resort attracts an international clientele. Because it occupies an entire peninsula of 40 hectares (100 acres), this hotel can seem like an island unto itself, with tranquil Mamora Bay to its west and the windswept Atlantic Ocean to the east. Green hills provide a backdrop for beaches of white sand.

Amenity Highlights: Two beaches, Mamora Beach and Coco Beach, each almost one km (a half-mile) long are protected by a barrier reef. Serving as the water-sports center, Mamora Bay's crescent beach is lapped by calm water and includes two wood docks ending in large sundecks furnished with lounge chairs. From the second beach, snorkelers head out to explore the coral offshore. Four pools, including one for children, provide freshwater swimming. The main pool features a 270-degree sea view. The resort's villa section includes a three-level bay-view pool and the fourth pool overlooks the open sea.

Insider Tip: Every Thursday night, the resort's evening dress code is relaxed at The Dockside, on the edge of Mamora Bay, when a steel band plays and a limbo dancer entertains during a Caribbean barbecue buffet.
